The Must Attend Conference for MS Users

Mass Spectrometry 2013 (6-7 March, 2013 - Biopolis, Singapore) is the must attend event for regular users of mass spectrometry and related coupled techniques wanting to improve their knowledge, analytical intelligence and method development strategies. Bringing together 20 of the world's leading technology experts and educators, the conference will offer an unparalleled programme of productivity enhancing talks, from understanding your molecule to optimizing your system to interpreting your results. If you use MS as part of your routine analytical work flows then this conference is aimed specifically at you - learn from the MS experts, become more productive and continue your professional development at Mass Spectrometry 2013.

Register NOW or before 31 October to receive your early bird rate of US$395

Poster Awards

Attendees are invited to submit abstracts for the associated poster sessions, which will have a dedicated one-hour slot after lunch each day. Posters should offer insights into good MS practice, method development strategies and troubleshooting advice, as well as applications of MS to analytical challenges in pharmaceutical, food, environmental, petrochemical and bioclinical labs. The poster session will be sponsored by Agilent Technologies, who will also provide prizes for the three leading presentations. In addition, the winners will all be given a 5 minute slot to present their posters to the conference delegates before the start of the final scientific session. All poster presenters are offered a discounted rate of US$300.
